At various times there have been demands to ban books, plays, films, or academic articles in research journals. Let us think about this demand to ban books in the light of our discussion so far which sees freedom as 'the making of choices', where a distinction is made between 'negative and positive liberty', where we recognise the need for 'justifiable constraints' but these have to be supported by proper procedures and important moral arguments. Freedom of expression is a fundamental value and for that society must be willing to bear some inconvenience to protect it from people who want to restrict it. Remember Voltaire's statement — 'I disapprove of what you say but I will defend to death your right to say it'. How deeply are we committed to this freedom of expression?

Questions:

1. What are the two aspects of liberty?
2. What is a fundamental value among rights?
3. How can we support justifiable constraints?

Qno.16 Read the cartoon given below and answer the questions that follow:

2+3= (5)

Questions:

1. These members of the ruling party are trying to listen to the 'tiny' opposition! Was this the effect of our electoral system?
2. What does the cartoon represent?

Qno.17 Some people argue that inequality is natural while others maintain that it is equality which is natural and the inequalities which we notice around us are created by the society. Which view do you support? Give reasons. (6)
